Professor Ken Brown, like several profs at MC, finds a bicycle the best means of campus transportation.

Sunday afternoons and the intramural season often find students playing a game of basketball on one of three courts in the PERC.

Runners like Phyllis Orput frequently layer their clothing during the fall season.

Freshman Brent Stewart finds weightlifting not only a hobby, but a way of keeping fit.

Racquetball courts are constantly used by students such as Rita Kaiser and Julie Kent.

In the golf class, Lisa Pinkerton practices her driving form.

Always Reaching Higher

PHYSICALLY

The all-important goal of improving or maintaining one's physical condition could be seen all around the campus. Students, faculty, and staff displayed their determination to improve themselves through a wide variety of physical activities. Along with intercollegiate sports, intramurals involved a large percentage of the campus participating in any of the many events available. Individually or with friends, others could be seen going through the jogger-cise trail, lifting weights in PERC, doing aerobics, going to a dance, or even eating in the cafeteria. Students often found that some type of physical exercise was necessary to release the energy after a day full of classes or exams.

Aside from the daily routine, special occasions gave the campus ample opportunity to exert some energy. On Camp Mack Day, students and faculty set aside a day of classes for fun and recreation at Lake Waubee. The Turkey and Frost Trots, the May Day Run, and the Open PERC during various weekends all gave students, as well as members of the community, a chance to take part. Even fundraisers such as the Community Council's swim-a-thon combined fitness with a goal to raise money for needy families in the surrounding area.

Naps, we often discovered, were necessary after many of these activities. Onita Johnson, Health, Physical Education, and Recreation department chair, said, "You feel so much better about yourself after you participate and put forth the effort to condition your body. It's all worth it."

Whether for the sake of competition or for just staying healthy, the physical aspects of campus life kept us always reaching higher to improve our physical condition.

MENTALLY

On a typical afternoon at Manchester College, one did not have to roam far to see students testing their mental capacities. In classrooms, labs, the library or the computer center, students were found putting in long hours of work, hoping the time spent would lead to a college degree and a desired career.

With a goal in one's mind, the facilities at Manchester offered students that opportunity to enrich their education. The new computer center was an addition to the academic scene in '84, and students were found there on late Sunday nights as well as the weekdays. Science labs were also occupied on weekdays and weeknights.

A quiet atmosphere and the wide variety of resources attracted students and faculty to the Funderburg Library which stayed open 88 hours per week. The Reading and Study Skills Center in the Career Office offered materials and personnel to assist students in a self-paced study skills improvement program. Petersime Chapel also frequently proved to be beneficial, allowing students a place to gather to confirm notes and study for tests.

Aside from the usual class work, there were other educational opportunities on campus. The convos, the '84 Presidential debates and the Artist-Lecture Series stimulated the minds of many. Even the video games in the Union and the challenging Trivial Pursuit game continued to test the minds of students and faculty.

Whether students were reading, typing papers, writing up lab reports or studying for finals, they were striving to do their best, reaching higher for a potential lifetime career goal. Through quality educators, tough class schedules and valuable January term experiences, students became better mentally prepared to face the world.

Kim Parker, a physical chemistry student, keeps a close eye on one of her experiments.

The "Dungeons and Dragons" game provides a fun challenge for Ron Foust.

A Friday morning prayer breakfast gives junior Al Tripp an opportunity to read the Bible as well as eat with a friend, Shawn Crothers.

In his printmaking class, Eric Joseph realizes that patience and steady hands are a must in project work

Mid-terms and finals week often keep students such as Terri Laycock confined to their studies and rooms most of the entire week

Clowning around in Ikenberry are Mike Willoughby and the Joseph brothers, Mark and Eric. Bunks are common in Ikenberry because of the larger rooms and high ceilings.

Always Reaching Higher

SOCIALLY

Whether you heard it in Monday morning convo, read it in a mailbox memo, or caught a glimpse of a poster in the Union, students found many chances to seek an enjoyable social life through sponsored activities. From September to May, a student's calendar could be cluttered with social events.

Manchester strived through the new MAC (Manchester Activities Council) to continually improve campus activities. The high-rated movies and the MAC-sponsored special weekends gave students an opportunity to meet with friends and invite family members to weekends planned especially for them.

Open houses, dances, hog roasts, AAFRO mixers, picnics between halls, and various organizational retreats promoted social intermingling. Aside from such events, places like the Oaks, the Cellar, and the hall lobbies were common areas filled with chatter, laughter, and a feeling of togetherness.

Through the hard work of various organizations along with lots of spontaneous activities, students were always reaching higher for a more enjoyable social life.

After directing a session pertaining to the all-campus retreat's theme of "Living Our Love," Jackie Wilson discusses the reactions from the students with Tim McElwee.

On Halloween night, Grady Mendenhall enjoys the pumpkin carving activity at a party put on by the BASIC group.

Taking a mid-afternoon break after attending sessions in the morning, Roya Stern, Jackie Wilson, Dennis Beckner and Lesli Drawert, who attended an all-campus retreat at Koinonia, relax in the brisk autumn air.

Reading the Scripture in his spare time, Terry Vaughn relaxes with a friend, Ryan McBride.

Students and faculty sing with Campus Pastor Tim McElwee during Wednesday Chapel.

Bible Trivial Pursuit keeps Lauree Weimer, Jill Yost and Karin Heckman entertained.

SPIRITUALLY

Through a wide-range of religious activities, Manchester students could be found striving for spiritual growth both on-and off-campus.

On Sunday, not only did the community churches open their doors, but the Petersime Chapel was open for a Sunday Celebration of its own. Led by students, the service gave small groups a chance to intermingle ideas and plan a program which often consisted of songs, a sermon or even skits. A morning chapel on Wednesday was directed by Campus Pastor Tim McElwee to give students and faculty another opportunity to worship.

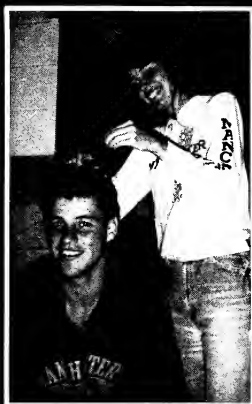

Through Bible study groups students kept spiritually active. The BASIC (Brothers and Sisters In Christ) group met on Wednesday evenings for fellowship and discovered a group support in devotions or guest speakers. The Rejoice group, on the other hand, met to emphasize the singing and praising of God. A third group, OMT (Outreach Ministry Teams), kept busy leading worship services in neighboring churches.

Besides those groups, students on different hall wings often met for their own Bible studies. Other students attended the Friday prayer breakfast in the Union or participated in a Chapel Fellowship held once a month.

Groups such as the Religious Life Committee and the Campus Ministry Board organized events for the whole year. Planning Focus on Faith Week, arranging two all-campus retreats and bringing three well-known movies to campus were all products of their work. The annual Focus on Faith Week in November was highlighted by the presence of Melanie May, a former MC graduate, and a panel discussion on "The Role of Women in the Church."

The spiritual aspect of college life kept many active on-and off-campus. Through the efforts of several organizations, MC continued to maintain a friendly, spiritual atmosphere.

As freshmen, students arrive on campus full of nervous energy. The events of orientation break the ice and bring about new friendships. They soon learn that life on campus is not all books. There always seems to be something to do: a video dance, MAC movies, Trivial Pursuit, MAC-sponsored weekends, Thursday night specials, or just talking with friends. As graduation day approaches, seniors look back over their college days and into the future and see the continuous process of always reaching higher.

STUDENT LIFE

Political science professor Jack Meek gets a hit for the faculty in the softball game against the students.

Getting down to the nitty-gritty, East Hall residents give a heave-ho in their attempt to conquer Oakwood in the tug-of-war.

The Sun Shines On Camp Mack

Gliding down Lake Waubee after their victory in the first heat of the canoe race, Gavin Meek and Shelia Yoder return to the dock.

"Pull! Pull! Pull!" "Stroke! Stroke! Stroke!" "You're out!" These are some of the various phrases screamed by the enthusiastic participants at the annual Camp Mack Day activities.

Students awoke on Camp Mack Day to a sunrise and a clear sky so the bells remained silent. Without the usual rain and wind, students and faculty enjoyed a fun-filled day of events.

Starting the day off was the struggle of the halls, classes, majors, and profs, in the traditional tug-of-war. Other highlights of the day were the canoe races on Lake Waubee, the sack races, four square, and of course the annual student/faculty softball game. Captivating audiences for the first time was the egg toss. Only a few participants escaped without "egg on the face".

Overall, a good time was enjoyed by all.

Coffee and donuts with professors in the Oaks gives parents an opportunity to find out how their children are doing and to get to know the professors a little better.

Mark Tritch finds that Parents' Weekend provides many opportunities to meet new people, as he talks with Bill Rentz and his parents at the President's Reception.

The parents of J.V. Gilbert, as well as those of the rest of the football team and the cheerleaders, are honored in a pre-game ceremony.

From MC With Love

After three and a half weeks of studying, MC students had a chance to show their parents how they spend nine months of the year.

Friday night began with a kick-off dinner in the Union Cafeteria. Students welcomed their parents with flowers received at registration. Early evening hours were spent relaxing and catching up on what was happening in their lives. The movie "Terms of Endearment" shown later in the evening, gave people a chance to laugh as well as cry together. A Make-Your-Own Sundae Oaks Special proved to be an attractive way to wind down the evening.

Many more parents arrived Saturday morning, filling the Oaks for Coffee and Donuts with the professors. President Helman's Reception followed and then football fans headed to Kenapocomoco field for the game against Principia. The AAFRO Club sponsored a Minority Parents' Dinner in the Oakwood Basement after the game. Evening activities included Rosemary Manifold's "Hat Talk," during which Rosemary modelled and spoke on her many different hats. "Terms of Endearment" again drew many to its showing, while a Taffy Pull in the Cellar was a "sticky situation" involving quite a few parents and students. The final activity of the evening was a 40's & 50's dance featuring a band of older gentlemen.

Sunday drew the weekend to a close with Sunday Celebration, lunch, and an Open Gym.

Running back Dave Malone sprints for a first down against Bluffton.

Homecoming '84

The Homecoming festivities all began on Monday, October 15, with a kick-off dinner and an Open Union. Tuesday's activities started with a Cellar Special along with "Open Mic", which was open to any campus comedians. The evening's events ended with a dance in Oakwood. On Wednesday, the excitement built up as the women became involved in some hard-fought games of powderpuff football with the seniors coming out on top. To top off the evening, "Broadway Danny Rose" was shown.

The activities didn't come to a halt then. Thursday was the first of three showings of "The Big Chill," along with an Oaks Special and Thursday Night in the Oaks with Becky Booth and Lynda Lowman. On Friday night, the Homecoming play "Ten Little Indians" opened.

The most eventful day, Saturday, started off with a Homecoming parade, featuring the Homecoming Court, the Spartan football team and cheerleaders. Class reunions for many alumni took place on campus throughout the day. The game kicked off with the release of 2000 balloons. Half-time entertainment was provided by the West Noble High School Band and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen Amy Moster and King Brian Harley. Following the game against Bluffton was a carnival in the Old Gym. The day's excitement came to an end as WMEE's Charlie Butcher dj'd a semi-formal dance. The week came to a close with Sunday Celebration, Open PERC, and the Cellar's Birthday Party.

Weekends Are For Friends

The years a student spends at MC provide many chances for new friendships to grow and flourish. These friendships, as well as those from home, are very important. Friends' Weekend is one opportunity for students to bring together "old" and "new" friends and see how their college life fits in with their home life.

Friends' Weekend came in the first week in November, stating that "having a friend is no risky business." A special friends dinner started off the weekend of activities, followed by the Friends Game, the movie "Risky Business," a Cellar Special with nachos, Friday Night in The Cellar with Trina Chapman, a Schwalm dance, and a bonfire.

Saturday afternoon a Scavenger Hunt was held, along with men's and women's alumni basketball games, and a mystery dinner. A Make-Your-Own Sundaes Oaks Special led off the evening, followed by a second showing of "Risky Business" and a Video Dance carrying the theme "MC VD — Catch It!"

Sunday wound down the weekend with an Open PERC and a Jazz Ensemble/A Cappella Concert. As the day came to a close, weekend visitors said their goodbyes to both old and new friends.

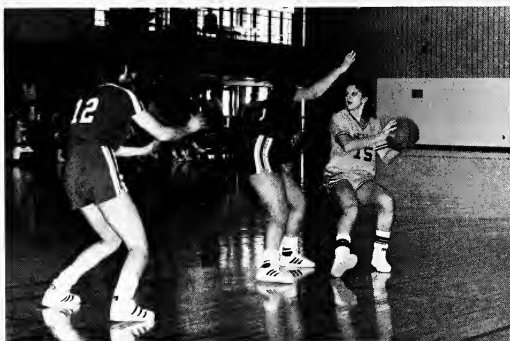

The creative publicity committee for Friends' Weekend is made up of Sue Levan, Leann Pera, Connie Ramos, and Sally Taskey.

During Winterfest, Diane Farmer and her teammates battle Hanover College on the home court.

Despite the unpredictable wintry weather, runners were not kept away from the Frost Trot.

Winterfest: "Snowbound"

Acting as hostesses of the "Dating Game," Jan Taylor and Celia Cook dance during Celia's night in The Cellar.

"Snowbound" served as the theme throughout Winterfest '85, but snow and cold temperatures didn't keep students away from the week-long activities.

After Monday night's kick-off dinner in the Union, activities got into full swing on Tuesday with a Taco Special in the Oaks. On Wednesday night, a large crowd filled The Cellar to watch Celia Cook and her friends perform various humorous skits on stage. Accompanying the acts was a Cellar Special of 50¢ Chili Dogs. Thursday and Friday evenings, students got the chance to see the MAC movie, "Splash," and attend the free dance put on by Bob Vitoux on Friday.

Saturday morning marked the start of Winterfest Ski Weekend at Cannonburg Ski Resort in Grand Rapids, Michigan. About thirty students and friends journeyed north, and despite the bruises, many returned with smiling red faces. Those students who stayed on campus were given the opportunity to participate in a racquetball tourney, laugh to the Sam Glick Memorial Players, or attend the AA-FRO Club's Sock Hop. On Sunday, racquetball continued, and a three-hour Open PERC gave students yet another chance to keep warm inside. The Frost Trot, however, proved to be bone-chilling as runners braved the outside cold air to compete "Hawaiian Style" with shorts and tank-tops.

The participants in the winter golf competition are Ray Davis, Jeff Keaffaber, Scott Goeglein, Brian Hole, and Ed Wogoman.

Along with many other students, Karen Vernon and Craig Hughes boogie to the music while enjoying the performance of the live band "Kicks."

Break Away . . . To The Past

Just two weeks prior to spring break, students had a chance to get away from it all without even leaving campus. This opportunity came during Breakaway Week.

"Break Away To The Past" started with a steak dinner in the Union on Monday. Tuesday's volleyball tourney and Wednesday's frisbee golf allowed students to compete in some fun exercise. In frisbee golf, Jeff Hunn and Dave Pinkham captured the top prize. On Thursday, John Keller hosted a Night in the Oaks sing along.

As the weekend arrived, MAC presented the baseball movie, "The Natural," starring Robert Redford. Each night the movie was followed by a dance. On Friday, students met in Garver's lobby for the sock hop. On Saturday, they crowded into the Union to listen and dance to the live band, "Kicks." Capping the week's activities were a Fun Run and Open PERC on Sunday. And the countdown to spring break continued.

Shower The People You Love With Love

Brother/Sister Weekend kicked off on Friday, April 19 with dinner and registration in the Union. A cellar special and Friday Night in the Cellar with the Harleys followed. Other events included the movie "Star Trek III", a bonfire, and a dance with Nevin Dula-baum as d.j.

On Saturday morning, cartoons were shown in Cordier with free donuts. With the sunny afternoon came a picnic lunch followed by games involving Spartan baseball, softball, golf, and track teams. "The Muppets Take Manhattan" was shown in both the afternoon and evening. A carnival was also held in Schwalm parking lot followed by dinner in the Union with movies. The evening came to an end with the Brother/Sister game, an Oaks special, and a square dance.

Sunday Celebration began the final day of the fun-filled weekend, followed by an open PERC and crafts on the Union lawn. The day came to a close as parents came to pick up brothers and sisters.

Clown Dave Schultz keeps this little boy occupied at the carnival.

The Brother/Sister game shows how much sisters and brothers really know about each other, such as what their favorite ice cream is and who spends more time getting ready in the morning.

Thom Pemberton plays a truck driver in the May Day Musical "Working" by Studs Terkel.

Using their last ounces of strength, alumni Chris Lude and Craig Shanks paddle as quickly as possible down the Kenapocomoco River toward the finish line in the Canoe Race.

After finishing his turn in the Bike Race, Tim Dibley is congratulated by his teammate John Bratsakis while Keith Zimmer takes off on the bike for the next several laps.

Take Time To Be Happy

One of the unique races of May Day is the Bed Race. Craig Hughes, Jill Hood, Doug Coe, and Debbie Xaver dash to the finish in their bid to win the race.

May Day Week is a time to be happy because it signals spring and the nearing of the end of classes. There are races, dances, movies, and a musical to celebrate this time and the last special event of the year.

Among the races students could enter were the Trike Race, Bed Race, Bike Race, Canoe Race, and 3-mile Race. There was an outside dance Tuesday night and a semi-formal dance on Saturday night with WMEE's Tommy Allen. This year's May Day Production was the musical "Working" by Studs Terkel. "Rhinestone" was the Wednesday night movie, and "Beat Street" was shown on the weekend. Other events included the Roommate Game, an Oaks special, a Cellar special, an Open Union, and Tug-O-War. The May Day Week ended with the AAFRO Club BBQ.

With a sigh of relief, Karen Vernon applauds her correct answer in the Roommate Game and gets a smile of approval from her roommate Jill Hood

Emilio Hernandez, played by Juan Carlos Franceschi in "Working", hands out leaflets to people outside of a grocery store asking them not to buy grapes

In the May Day production "Working", Donna Smith, Dawn Carlson, and Sandy Grant play telephone operators.

The third place winners of the Bike Race, alumni Bill White, Tim McElwee, and Bill Baxter, receive congratulations from President Helman.

The Trike Race teams not only had a chance to race, but also to dress up for competition, just like Lisa Rommelmann, Cindy Engle, Brianna Babin and Connie Ramos.

The MC student body listens attentively to Dean Keller as he introduces the speaker in a fall convo.

Brian Harley makes a spectacular entrance during his senior convo.

In "Mr. Dewey's Neighborhood", Jeff King discusses his personal views on family, friends, and the future during his Senior Series program.

Convos Offer Variety

Benton Cook, Brad Gilbert, John Keller, and Jeff King sing "Always Marry an Ugly Woman," during Keller's Senior Series convo.

Henry Fairley and Michelle Lewis harmonize during the AAFRO Club Reader's Theater

From A. Blair Helman's opening convo in the fall to the Fort Wayne Dance Collective in the spring, MC students experienced quite an array of convocations.

Some speakers that appeared throughout the year were: Ms. Melanie May, a former MC student, spoke on "Christian Unity: Women, Men and the Bible;" Mr. Terry Hafner, physically disabled from birth, discussed "More than Show and Tell;" the Alpha-Omega Players presented "California Suite;" Dr. Barbara Love talked on "The Impact of Race and Gender on Corporate Culture."

Artist/Lecture Series included: syndicated columnist Ms. Ellen Goodman whose topic dealt with "Can we have it all?"; the Whitewater Opera Company's presentation of "The Barber of Seville;" James J. Lawless's one-man play, and "The Chester String Quartet."

"Brigadoon," "The Cranes are Flying," "Small Change," and "Lord of the Flies" were some of the Foreign/Classic films included on the convo list.

All of these educational experiences presented several different perspectives to students, faculty, and community members.

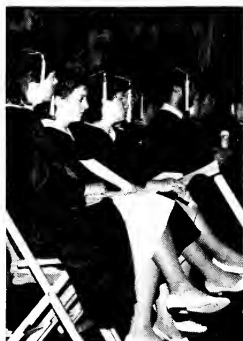

Clay Bowman, Karen Myers, and a group of second graders enlighten the audience with the song "It's A Small World."

Dr. Edward Miller leads the procession of graduating students to Cordier.

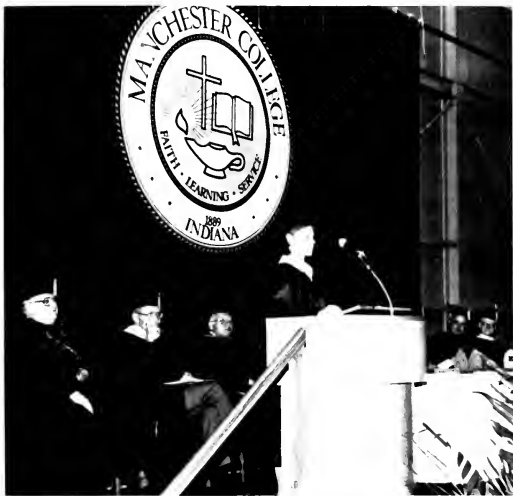

In his Baccalaureate sermon, President Helman encourages the graduates to continue their educational learning.

During Commencement, Sarah Milliman, Amy Mosier, and Stacy Pearce listen to Dr. Rolland's address.

212 Receive Degrees

As a new addition to the Commencement program, the Class of 1985 responds to the Alumni greeting through representative Trina Chapman.

With diplomas in hand and tassels swinging on the left, 212 graduates left the Physical Education and Recreation Center Sunday afternoon, May 19. The day, filled with sunshine, began at 11 a.m. with the Baccalaureate in Cordier Auditorium. President Helman delivered the sermon giving advice concerning faith, learning, and service to the graduating students. At 2:30 that afternoon, family and friends assembled in PERC for the Commencement. The President and Chief Executive Officer of Lincoln National Corporation, Ian M. Rolland, spoke to the graduates about business-related careers since a high percentage of the graduates were receiving degrees in the business area. Following the presentation and conferring of degrees, Leland Beery welcomed the new graduates into the Alumni Association. Trina Chapman accepted the welcome on behalf of the Class of 1985.

Satisfaction from athletic competition can be found through participating, observing, or coaching. The coach plans and organizes practice to give the athlete every opportunity to improve. Taking this opportunity, the athlete struggles and sweats during morning and afternoon practices, striving for the best. While the athlete prepares for the competition, the observers indirectly participate by showing their support for the team. No matter what role is taken in sports, the competitive spirit stimulates the continuing process of always reaching higher.

SPORTS

At the Manchester Invitational, Trina Chapman, Marla Miller, and Penny Rosdil keep up a steady pace and go on to capture eighth, fourth, and second places, respectively. The women's team finished third, only one point behind St. Joseph's College.

Cross Country

The women's cross country team started the season with goals to win Little State, Districts, and to qualify for Nationals. With the exception of falling one point short of winning Little State, the team accomplished their goals.

The team took Penny Rosdil, Trina Chapman, Marla Miller, Lynelle Miller, Kathy White, Meg McElroy, and Carol Schoenle to the NAIA Nationals in Parkside, Wisconsin. The team finished 17th out of 31 schools. Reviewing the top 20 finishers, Coach Schultz said they were the smallest non-scholarship school to place in the top 20.

Team captains, Penny Rosdil and Trina Chapman, received All-District 21 honors along with Marla Miller, Lynelle Miller, and Kathy White. Following the end of the season, Penny Rosdil was named Most Valuable Runner. Lynelle Miller was recognized as the Most Improved Runner.

Hoping to improve the team's performance in District 21 competition and the Hoosier-Buckeye Collegiate Conference, the men's cross country team also wanted to qualify an individual for Nationals. "It felt good that we were able to come through with our goals," Coach Schultz said. The men's performance improved each week, he said. They started the year with seventh and eighth place finishes, but went on to capture second in the HBCC conference meet where Schultz felt they showed their best performance.

Qualifying at the District 21 meet, Kyle Strode went to the NAIA Nationals. He placed 134th in a field of 351.

All-Conference awards went to team captain Kyle Strode and to Barry Schnieders. Strode also received All-District 21 honors. The Most Improved Runner went to Dennis Krepes.

Named Most Valuable Runner, Kyle Strode crosses the finish line in fourth place, which is the top MC finish, in the Manchester Invitational.

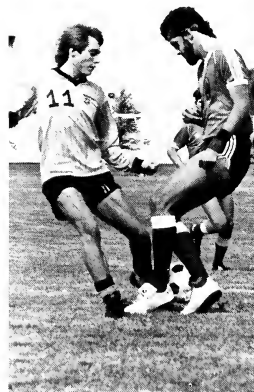

Striving for a good performance, Dan Wright, Jim Goddard, and Dennis Kreps help the team to place fourth in the Manchester Invitational

Soccer

For the first time ever, Manchester College's soccer team reached the District Playoff finals. Under the leadership of District 21 Coach of the Year, David Good, the Spartans combined the skill and experience of the upperclassmen with a highly talented group of first year players, to produce a memorable season. When asked in which game did the Spartans play up to their potential, Coach Good replied, "The Grace game. We had won three and lost one at that point and knew we were a decent team. It took a fine performance to beat Grace and we convinced ourselves that we were a very good team."

Individually, the team was led by Young Choi, an All-District performer, who finished in the top ten in the NAIA goals and total point categories. In addition, goalie Juan Carlos Franceschi finished thirteenth in the nation, allowing only an average of one goal per game. Overall, the team finished in the top twenty in the nation in both scoring and defense.

Young Choi strategically moves the ball toward a goal; he averaged 1.3 goals per game.

Tennis

After losing the number one and number three players from last year, the Manchester men's tennis team, coached by Vic Glover, appeared set for a rebuilding season. The '84 squad, though, thought differently. The Spartans followed up last year's second place conference finish with another second place, trailing Anderson by a mere 3 points. They also went on to finish sixth out of 17 teams in the District 21 Tourney.

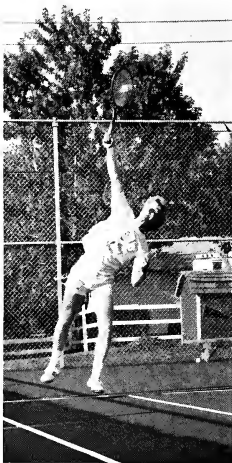

Individually, Lee Fonacier and Brad Martin received All-HBCC honors for winning the #3 and #4 singles championships respectively. Fonacier and Martin later combined for a runner-up finish in the #2 doubles. In addition, Bill Moon (#1), who was voted by the coaches onto the All-HBCC team, Tom Moon (#5), and Ron Daniels (#6) all finished second in their respective categories at the HBCC tourney.

Brad Martin said, of losing senior captain and #2 singles player, Jeff Helmkamp, "He provided quality leadership by example."

Happy and proud were only two of the many complimentary adjectives used by Coach Judi Silvers when asked about the Manchester women's tennis team. The youthful team, which had only one senior member, finished fifth in the conference tourney. Coach Silvers said of the team, "... they molded themselves together and showed much progress throughout the season." She also stressed the mental attitude of the team members during the course of the season.

Going into Districts, Janice Strycker was seeded in the singles competition, as were Jill Bolze and Christy Rosete at the #3 doubles. Sophomore Denise Clark reached the District finals in the singles competition.

Football

Injuries, injuries, and more injuries plagued Coach Bob Cornell's Spartan football team as they fought their way to a 3-6 record.

Despite a small roster, quarterback Dave Berg's is throwing accomplishments and Randy Spitaels' and Todd Saylor's catching abilities kept the Spartans competitive. The Spartan offense, which tallied 45 points in the season opener against Grand Rapids Junior College, accumulated over 3,000 total yards, a drastic improvement from previous years. Defensively, the Spartans, including six freshman starters, proved to be just as effective in their 3-0 victory over Defiance. This was the first MC football shutout since 1978. Todd Saunders, an All-District 21 selection, along with senior Scott Snodgrass led the team in defensive points.

Along with Saunders, Saylor and Berg were named to the All-District team; Spitaels was selected to the All-Conference squad.

Saylor and Berg also established Spartan records. Saylor caught a record number of touchdown passes in a season while Berg's record 40-yard field goal came in the closing seconds of the Defiance game. Aside from the win over Defiance, there was also the exciting 31-28 triumph over Bluffton in the Homecoming game.

Looking over the season, third-year Coach Cornell saw his team's best efforts put forth in the final four games which included battles against highly-regarded Wilmington and Findlay.

Senior Dave Berg, Manchester's all-time leading offensive player, decides to keep the football and run through a hole left by the Earlham defense.

Returning the ball for yardage against Principia is running back Terry Schrock who had to fill in for several injured backs throughout the season. Principia went on to win the game, 28-23.

Sophomore Leroy Kingsberry stretches for extra yardage in the Earlham game. The visiting Quakers broke open a close contest in the second half against MC to claim the victory, 23-13.

Volleyball

This was a trying year for the volleyball team. They had many things against them: they were not a tall team, they had no seniors, and they acquired a number of injuries. Though this year's record doesn't show a winning season, the team did reach goals they had set at the beginning of the year.

Defense best describes this group of women. Using a number of plays, Manchester also varied their offense to exhibit better play options.

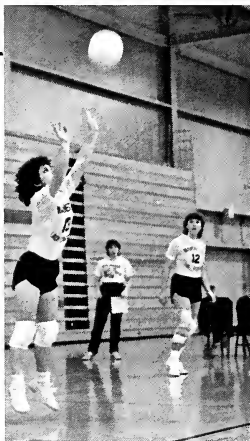

Coach Lana Groombridge commented that towards the end of the season the team pulled together and played with great team spirit and cohesiveness. She also added that there was an excellent team atmosphere.

This year Cindy Hoffman received the honors of Most Improved Player, and the Rotary Mental Attitude winner was Cindy Engle.

Displaying a high vertical leap, Teresa Mullins finds her ability an asset in spiking the ball.

Basketball

The Spartans, coached by Betty Clark, closed their season with a record of 12-10. One of those victories was a two point win over Huntington, a team the Spartans had not beaten in over four years. The Spartans finished 9th in the NAIA District 21, missing the playoffs by .042 of a point.

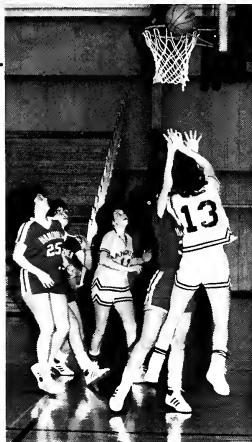

Coach Clark commented that the team rebounded well for their height which averaged 5 foot 6½ inches. she also added that the team consisted of only one junior and one senior. The Spartans, Clark continued, were over-achievers from the beginning to the end of the season.

On awards night, several players received special recognition. Sally Thayer won the Best Free Throw percentage award (.739). The Best Field Goal percentage trophy (.439) went to Jackie Meinders while Diane Farmer had a double honor with Best Defensive Player and Most Assists (54). Melissa Miller was named the Rotary Club Mental Attitude award winner. Jill Corey, the only graduating senior, took the honors of Most Rebounds (231) and Most Valuable Player, along with a career plaque to show her many accomplishments. Among these were all-time leading Spartan scorer with 1,032 career points, 790 career rebounds, and 241 career steals.

Basketball

Facing a height disadvantage in almost every game, the men's basketball squad had much adversity to contend with during the season. With hard work and determination though, the team met the adversity and had a competitive season. Coach Heavilon said of the team, "They worked harder than any other team. While at times it was hard for them to get motivated, they always came through."

The team was led in scoring by Scott Jennings with a 19.6 point average. Jennings also scored the 1000th point of his Manchester career, as a junior, on January 14 against Marion. Close behind Jennings in scoring was sophomore Jere Eaton at 15.3 points per game. Henry Fairley led the team in rebounds and Tim Sirk led in assists. As a team, the Spartans averaged 72.3 points, while shooting 48 percent from the field and 70 percent from the line.

Of Brett Patrick, the only senior on the team, Coach Heavilon commented, "He never quit hustling. I wish everybody in the program had his heart."

Softball

While Manchester's softball team may not have had an outstanding win-loss record, the Spartans, through many stellar individual performances, provided much excitement for their fans. Senior Jill Corey led NAIA District 21 statistics in the RBI (38) and the batting average (.449) categories. Corey was also named to the All-District team. Other players who earned recognition included Elaine Novack — Pitcher of the Year, and Cheryl Helvig — Defensive Player of the Year. Lisa Girton led the team with a .321 on base percentage.

Coach Betty Clark, when asked about the team, said, "The atmosphere between the players was much better than previous years." She added that while the record was a little disappointing, the team played very well in Florida, and that experience gained by the younger players is a plus for next year. Clark also praised Wes Yoder for his job as student assistant and seniors Jill Corey and Nancy Wright for the leadership they provided.

With a powerful swing, Jill Minton makes contact with the ball.

Capturing a conference championship (HBCC), the Spartans show their excitement by lifting the trophy to celebrate their win.

Baseball

For the first time since 1972, a Manchester team won a conference championship. That championship, resulting from a 6-5 victory over Anderson, highlighted the baseball season, which also included a NAIA District 21 tournament appearance.

When asked about the team, Coach Jim Gratz said that the players had good attitudes and hustled which, while not showing up directly in the statistics, helped win some important games. He added that the team had "a willingness to work" which was proven in the victory over Anderson. Assistant Coach Jeff Surbey, when discussing the championship game, said, "They were down two in the bottom of the seventh, and didn't die." Coach Gratz also gave some credit for the team's success to the tough schedule they played. Gratz said that playing a Division I and II team along with a nationally ranked NAIA team helped the team by giving them a role model to follow.

Leading the Spartans was senior starting pitcher, Steve Hickman. Hickman led the team with a 3.56 earned run average, and led the entire Hoo-sier Buckeye Collegiate Conference (HBCC) with a 10-4 won-loss record. Leading hitters for the team were Tim Kessler at .322 and Steve Kile at .309. Also, Tim DuVall led the team with 26 runs batted in.

Track

Winning both the NAIA District and Little State championships made the year memorable for the Spartan track and field team. They qualified 10 members for Nationals, which is the largest number to date.

Champions who were named to the All-District team were Julie Kent — shotput; Sally Taskey — javelin; Marla Miller — 1500m; Trina Chapman — 10,000m; Sheila Fisher, Meg McElroy, Kathy White, and Marla Miller — 3200 meter relay; and Robin Wiggin — long jump, 100 meter dash, and 400 meter hurdles. Coaches Schultz, Groombridge, and Niswonger were also named Coaches of the Year for the district.

Several school records were broken by the squad. Sophomore Sally Taskey set a new javelin record of 120 feet 10 inches while veteran Julie Kent broke both the shotput record with a toss of 43 feet 3 inches and the discus record with a throw of 120 feet 9 inches. The triple jump was broken by newcomer LouAnn Welsh with a mark of 33 feet $\frac{3}{4}$ inch, and the 3200 meter relay team also broke a Manchester record.

Awards went to the following athletes: Penny Rosdil — Most Valuable Runner, Julie Kent — Most Valuable Field, Marla Miller — Mental Attitude, and Robin Wiggin — Outstanding Track and Field Athlete.

Seniors played a large part in the success of the team. During the District 21 meet, the three seniors, Trina Chapman, Penny Rosdil, and Robin Wiggin scored 70 of the total points. They also accumulated 57 of the 137 points during the Little State meet.

During the 10,000 meter run, Trina Chapman shows the determination which led her to Nationals.

Using her innermost strength, Jackie Meinders heaves the shotput in the District 21 meet.

LouAnn Welsh uses her arms to gain distance in the triple jump.

Track

The men's track team experienced success in 1985 due to the outstanding individuals on the team. The team as a whole received second in the Grace relays and third in the District 21 NAIA meet. During the latter meet two individuals made the All-District team, Dave Glassburn and Tim Ogden. In the HBCC conference meet the Spartans captured second place overall and two individuals were named to the All-Conference team. One was Kyle Strode for the Steeplechase and the other athlete was Dave Glassburn in the high jump. A new record was set at this meet when Glassburn cleared the high jump bar at 7 feet 2 inches. This high jumper also became MC's first ever National Indoor Champion which he accomplished earlier in the year.

During the District 21 meet hosted by Manchester in April, Kyle Strode heads for the water after clearing a barrier in the Steeplechase.

In District competition, Rick Cool shows good form and a determined look in the high hurdles race.

Strength and concentration can help an athlete achieve a greater distance in the discus as Matt Starr discovers with this toss.

Golf

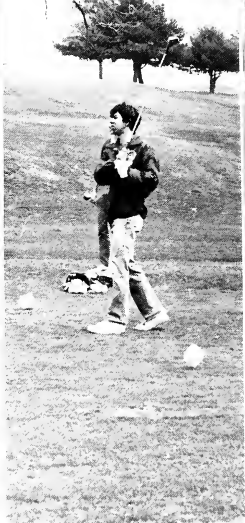

An experienced team was the key factor which led the Spartan golfers to a successful season which included two All-District NAIA players. Medalist Brian Hole came in second in the district and ended the season with an 80.5 average. Close behind with an 80.6 average was Scott Kreiger who came in ninth in the District 21 meet.

Coach Terry Heavilon's squad placed second in the Manchester Invitational and fourth in the Goshen Invitational. In the only dual meet outing, the squad edged Goshen 330-332. The golfers also finished fifth in both the conference and district meets.

As the season came to a close, Bob Moore and Dave Pinkham were recognized as three-year lettermen and Hole as a four-year veteran.

Anticipating a good outcome of this drive is golfer Mike Hippensteel.

Entering college for the first time, students come prepared to study hard. They see the college experience as being an educational one. However, classes are not the only way to receive an educational experience. Being involved with an organization can also provide learning and growth. Involvement in organizations, including sports, drama, or music give each the opportunity to work together in a team effort. Through participation, students learn organizational and cooperative skills, leadership, unity, and above all, how to get along with others. Being in an organization is just another part of the process of always reaching higher.

Music

Having an idea and discussing it, putting it on paper, and having a finished project is a common process in reaching many goals. Take college for example, students begin with the idea of furthering their education, then entering college and working hard to make it through four years. The accomplished goal is then confirmed by a diploma. This process would never be possible without the help of the faculty and staff. They provide guidance, leadership, and a helpful hand which gives everyone an opportunity to improve — thereby continuing the process of always reaching higher.

Getting ready for college life involves leaving high school friends, adjusting to different situations, and developing new relationships. Living in a residence hall provides an atmosphere for making friends and having good times. By midterm, there have been several trips to the DQ or to Tom's Donuts. Late nights for fun or study have become habitual for some. For others, friends provide the needed support so the thought of going home doesn't occur as often. Every year, more and more friends are met and by the time the senior year comes along, many faces and names are familiar. College life would not be the same without these friends. Through their support, experiences become more meaningful in the process of always reaching higher.

Before the BCA group picture, Caroline Ford and Rosanne Stroud, both students from England, enjoy a brief conversation

Like many students in college, Selwyn Wynter finds shrinking clothes a common problem in the laundry room

- Denotes faculty and staff members

Working as part of a team, Dennis Kreps, Brad Martin, Thom Koehlke, and Daphne Criswell make calls for the annual phonathon.

Prior to presenting "Ten Little Indians" during Homecoming, Stage Manager Eric Escott and Assistant Director Donna Smith confer with Director Scott Strode

On Friday, April 26, a group of students and faculty sing USA for Africa's song "We Are The World" during the demonstration on the mall.

Meeting The Challenge

Throughout the year, students exerted effort for classes, for teams, for spiritual groups, and for friendships. Clicking typewriters in the evening and shining lights in the early morning hours meant last minute papers and a cram session for finals. Spending hours at practices and showing team spirit helped the athletes feel a sense of accomplishment, whether a team effort to win the baseball conference or an individual effort to break the high-jump record. Attending chapel on Wednesday morning or meeting for a Bible study challenged students to continue to grow spiritually. Gathering friends for an 11 p.m. trip to Tom's Donuts or getting together for an evening of Trivial Pursuit helped students develop meaningful relationships.

Along with these efforts, students showed they were concerned with events outside the community. A protest against Apartheid, featuring songs by students and speeches by professors, was held on the mall during Human Rights Awareness Week in April. For a concern closer to home, Community Council sponsored a dance to raise money to help Franklin College reconstruct a residence hall damaged by fire.

The desire to help others and improve one's self provided a challenge to students, faculty, and staff. Meeting the challenge became a part of the process of always reaching higher.

Working as a student trainer, Becky Copp records information on athletic performance.

During the warm spring days, students spread blankets on the ground, turn on the radio, and enjoy some relaxing time trying to get a tan.

During his Jan. term class, Brian Hole practices lifesaving techniques at the Elkhart YMCA.

On the Jogercise course, Al Tripp tries to demonstrate how to do the calf stretch.

Many students gather on the mall to watch the Friday afternoon activities and to show their support for human rights.

Special Contributions By Many Greatly Appreciated

If you've just thumbed through the book and actually made it through to this page, you've just looked at a combination of creative ideas, countless hours, and hard work. The ideas for this book began to take shape in May 1984. Working with the ideas since then has been challenging at times, but also very rewarding. What you're holding is the finished product of the creation and realization of the theme always reaching higher.

Throughout the year, many people helped with the creation of this book. The staff and photographers deserve more credit than I can give them here — "you did good!" Thanks Andrea and Nevin for all your work. Special thanks go to Sandy and Mark — to Sandy for listening to my complaints, and putting in more than your share of work as both layout editor and sports section editor; to Mark for all your work to make the theme come to life and for your laughter and friendship. I'd also like to applaud Joy for a great advisor and go-between with the photographers. After we spent long hours checking pages (and several yawns later!), I left it to you to mail the pages or proofs — and you did! We didn't need those carbons anyway! And, of course, we can't forget the guy outside your window who interrupted our thoughts by "having a good time." What an inspiring thought — just what we were looking for.

Others contributed their work to make this book possible. Mark Childs, our Jostens representative, got the year off to a smooth start by providing assistance with the cover and layout graphics. Mr. Werking provided the album pictures and faculty retakes. Bill Smith took most of the organization shots and developed our pictures. Also, numerous contributed photographs are sprinkled throughout the book thanks to Public Relations, Oak Leaves, Betsy Ayrea, Dave Christenson, Dawn Weiler, Selwyn Wynter, Vic Glover, Angie Fokianos, and Dawn Runkle. Thanks so much for your contributions!

With all the efforts put forth to make this your yearbook, it is my hope that you will pick up this Aurora periodically and leaf through the pages, reliving the memories of the year of always reaching higher. It's been a great year!

Sincerely,

Ann Landis
